

BREMEN IS DUE AT BOSTON 21 DIE IN UNDER-LAKE PASSAGE, CLEVELAND

Second German Submarine Under Orders to Avoid Warships Off Virginia DEUTSCHLAND STAYS Every Man at Post and All Tests Made Ready For Deep Sea Dive

BALTIMORE, Md., July 25.—The submarine Bremen, sister ship of the Deutschland, in port here, will dock in Boston and not Baltimore as at first reported. It was learned from an official of the Eastern Forwarding company, agents of the submarine company, that orders were issued to the commander of the Bremen before she left Germany that she should not risk running into the fleet of allied warships waiting for the Deutschland outside the Virginia capes, but instead should go into Boston harbor.

DEUTSCHLAND JUST WAITS.

Every Man at His Post, Tests Made Ready for Dash.

BALTIMORE, Md., July 25.—Despite elaborate final preparations for the return trip of the German super-submarine Deutschland to Germany the big submersible today still lay at her dock, poised for the long dive along the Atlantic.

While the Deutschland waited, impatient to be on her way her perilous voyage across the enemy-infested seas, her officers and agents sought in vain for news of the Deutschland's sister ship, Bremen, long overdue. German representatives in Baltimore are at a loss to explain the delay in the arrival of the Bremen which left Germany, it is reported, more than three weeks ago. Rumors were abroad today that the second big submarine was missing and that German war submarines were combing the Atlantic searching for her.

Loath to leave Baltimore until some definite word of the Bremen had been received, Captain Paul Koenig with his vessel and crew primed for the dash across the Atlantic still delayed his departure. Every detail in the preparation of the big submersible for her daredevil return trip had been completed. Only a word was necessary to send the Deutschland careening out of her slip into the Patuxent river to begin the first leg of her journey. The big sea-going tug Timmins instead of being moored as usual at the slip was back into the dock with a line fast to the stern of the Deutschland, ready to jerk the submersible out into the stream and start down Chesapeake bay. Every man-jack of the husky crew of the Deutschland was aboard and at his post of duty. A submergence test had tuned up the complicated machinery of the big under-sea boat. In the 30 foot depth of water in the slip, Captain Koenig had lowered his craft until the decks were awash and then had brought her to the surface again.

Outside the big submarine was stripped for sea service. Her folding masts were tucked away in their groves along the hull and her wireless aerials were tucked away out of sight.

The Deutschland had been tuned up for her trip since early last evening.

Throughout the night there was a delirium of wind and rain, anxious observers on press tugs in the river peered through the sheets of rain, momentarily expecting her departure. The submarine was silent as a grave, but the Timmins, with a searchlight glaring through the rain, warned every craft away and enforced the warning. On one occasion the Timmins called up a smaller and faster tug, which threatened to run down over inquisitive launches. After a warty battle via megaphones through the rain and wind, the launch gave up the effort to pierce the mystery surrounding the Deutschland and peace was restored. Through the racking storm the press tugs lay in a semi-circle about the mouth of the Deutschland's slip, while the searchlight of the Timmins, with ceaseless regularity, inspected one after the other.

Dawn brought a lull in the wind and lessened the downpour of rain but the misty drizzle and the heavy water made conditions as favorable as could be expected for the dash of the Deutschland.

DANISH WEST INDIES PURCHASED BY U. S.

WASHINGTON, July 25.—White House officials today confirmed the report that the United States will purchase the Danish West Indies for approximately $25,000,000. It was stated that the negotiations, which have been in progress for nearly two years, are about completed. The text of the proposed purchase treaty has been agreed upon, it was stated, and the signatures of the two nations are to be affixed in the near future.

As soon as the treaty is completed it will be sent to the senate here and the Danish parliament for ratification. Officials declare that there is no doubt that the document will be approved by both.

The islands under consideration and which soon probably will pass under the control of the United States are Santa Cruz, St. Thomas and St. John in the lesser Antilles. Their area is in excess of 108 square miles and the population is about 85,000. The United States in securing them becomes possessor of a splendid harbor and coaling base.

LINEMAN FATAALLY SHOCKED.

YONGSTOWN, O., July 25.—Otto Cleary, Cambridge, O., telephone lineman, was fatally shocked here today when he came in contact with an electric cable.

A SHARK INFESTED LOCALITY

Two Killed As Boiler Blows Out at St. Mary's

The burns received by John Howell, 36, and Isaac Bodkins, 55, both of St. Mary's, when a boiler in the Western Ohio power plant in that city exploded, proved fatal to them and they passed away at an early hour this morning in a ward of the Lima city hospital. They were brought here last night immediately following the accident on a special car from St. Mary's.

According to employees of the power plant who witnessed the affair, the explosion occurred when Howell, Bodkins and Fred Hell were engaged in cleaning tubes in the boiler. Before the men were able to get out of danger they were completely enveloped in a cloud of steam. A sheet of flame burst from the boiler at the same time which along with the scalding steam completely cooked and burned to crisp the bodies of Howell and Bodkins.

John Howell was foreman of the engine room and the other two men were his assistants. Hell who was a short distance from the other two men at the time of the explosion was only slightly burned about the head. Physicians were summoned and first aid to the injured was administered. The condition of Howell and Bodkins warranted their removal to the hospital, but Hell was taken to his home.

Just what was the cause of the flues blowing out is not known, but officials of the company are of the opinion that it was due to a flaw in the steel plate. Chief Engineer Fred Mason of the plant is conducting an investigation in attempt to place the blame. The heat in which the two succumbed was so intense that the clothes was burned from their bodies.

The crippling of the boiler caused the Western Ohio railroad traffic to be tied up from 9 to 11:45 o'clock last night until the necessary repairs were made.

The Toledo-Defiance and Fort Wayne divisions of the Ohio Electric railroad were tied up during the same period of time. Power used in the operation of sub-stations on these divisions is furnished by this plant.

French and Russian Successes Officially Admitted By Berlin

BERLIN, July 25.—Successes for the French and Russians are admitted in the official report issued by the German war office today.

English attacks on the Pozieres-Maurois front, north of the Somme river, broke down.

Further south the French gained ground near Estrees.

On the eastern front Russian attacks south of Riga and along the Dvina were repulsed but the Russians succeeded in penetrating German positions on the Monowoka front and south of Beretozko.

PETROGRAD, July 25.—The Turkish armies in Armenia have been routed by the Russians, according to the following official report issued here today:

"In the Caucasus the Turkish armies are retreating in disorder. The Russians are only 10 miles from Erzincan."

ROME, July 25.—After a series of strong attacks lasting more than 24 hours the Italians are in possession of Monte Cimone.

The capture of Monte Cimone was announced by the war office today. The Italians also repulsed an Austro-Hungarian attack on the Anaga plateau gaining some trenches.

LONDON, July 25.—Sir Roger Casement's execution has been fixed for August 3, the Daily Mail stated today.

RICHARD ROUSH DROWNS WHILE BATHING IN POND

Goes Down Before Eyes of His Companions at Faurot Park.

RESCUE EFFORTS VAIN Thousands Drawn to Scene of Catastrophe Last Evening.

The first drowning fatality in Lima this summer occurred last night at one of the ponds in Faurot park when Richard Roush, 16-year-old son of Dr. William Roush, of 445 North Jameson avenue, waded into water that was over his head and disappeared under the surface before the terrified eyes of a group of boy friends. Although the body was recovered life was extinct and past the aid of modern science.

Companions of the lad immediately spread the alarm when his body failed to appear on the surface. Calls were sent to the police and fire departments and the Williams and Davis ambulance.

News of the drowning which occurred about 8 o'clock in the evening, spread over the city with great rapidity and caused hundreds of automobiles and pedestrians to visit the scene.

With the assistance of boats Firemen Jacobs and Meeks, Fire Chief Mack, Detective Roush and Chester Cable began to probe the bottom of the pond. Diving was also resorted to, but it was an hour and 15 minutes before the searching party was able to locate the body. Chester Cable dove into the water and brought it to the surface.

Pulmotors carried on the automobile of the chief of the fire department and the ambulance were immediately put into use in an attempt to bring back respiration. After an hour's vain attempt to bring back a spark of life, the body was removed to the city hospital, where further efforts proved that the life was extinct.

Leon Burgoon, Fred Boop and Darrel Crumrine, companions of the drowned lad, stated that the four of them went to the lake known as "Clinton" to take a swim. They claim that Roush was the first of the crowd to get his clothes off and jump into the water.

Although not a good swimmer the boys say that he waded toward the

GAS EXPLODES IN TUNNEL AS MEN STRIKE VEIN WITH PICKS

Workers Allowed to Enter Tube Without Helmets Or Other Means of Safety

Eight Members of Rescue Party Meet Death In Vain Effort to Save Comrades

CLEVELAND, O., July 25.—Twenty-one are known to be dead and a dozen injured as a result of an explosion of gas in a water-works tunnel under construction between a pumping station on land and an intake crib five miles out in Lake Erie, late last night.

The men were working 50 feet below the bottom of the lake, which is 70 feet deep at that point, placing them 120 feet below the surface. They were 1,700 feet shoreward from the crib. The explosion came as the tunnel workers broke through a gas vein with their picks and shovels and the fumes ignited from electric sparks.

The night shift had returned to work last night after a three days lay-off because gas fumes had been discovered and tests were made to ascertain the safety of further work.

FORMER DISASTERS.

Accidents in waterworks tunnels off Cleveland have cost many lives. In 1898 two big explosions killed 19 men. The first, on May 11, cost eight lives. The second, July 11, killed 11. On August 14, 1901, the burning of a temporary crib resulted in the death of nine.

Efforts to ascertain the exact number of dead were baffled because some of the injured who were placed on boats and taken ashore succumbed before reaching hospitals, while others, who at first were thought to be dead were brought back to life with the pulmotors. At 8:30 o'clock the figure of 24 was given out as the most accurate obtainable.

PLAGUE KEEPS ON STEADY INCREASE

NEW YORK, July 25.—Infantile paralysis showed another sharp increase today. The records showed 38 deaths and 159 new cases as compared with 31 deaths and 89 cases yesterday.

The plague has now stricken a total of 3,098 persons in the present epidemic. Of these cases 674 have proved fatal.

Regulations constituting a practical federal quarantine of the city went into effect today. Notices have been posted at many points warning all persons that tickets to interstate travel would not be sold for children under 16.

Federal health certificates are now being issued at the railway stations, ferry piers and ticket offices of the tubes leading to New Jersey.

Even automobile parties must secure these certificates. Every exit from the city by rail or water, except piers of ocean-going vessels are guarded.

RURAL CARRIERS MEET.

SPRINGFIELD, O., July 25.—The thirteenth annual convention of the Ohio Rural Mail Carriers' association met here this morning. E. A. Harris, Tremont City, president of the Clark County Association, presided.

Addresses of welcome were delivered by Charles E. Ashburner, city manager, and others. D. E. Bowers, Creston, president of the state association responded. About 100 attended. At the afternoon session President Bowers will deliver his annual address. Senator Powerine will address the convention tomorrow.

HEIR BORN TO RULER OF BIG INDIAN STATE.

CALCUTTA, July 25.—A son and heir has just been born to Major General the maharaja scindia of Gwalior, ruler of the third richest native state in India, over 8,000 square miles in area with a population of more than 2,000,000.

The maharaja has given the British empire since the war began 41 motor ambulances, 275,000 for motor transport, $20,000 for the ministry of munitions and $50,000 for other purposes.

Although suspicious odors had been noticed for several days and work had been halted the men were permitted to enter the tube without helmets or other means of safety.

At 8 o'clock last evening, 11 men descended the shaft. As they later worked on the surface detected gas and attempted to signal the men in the tube. Receiving no response they sent rocket signals into the air to attract life-savers on shore, there being no other means of communication. It was almost midnight before aid reached the scene and then a rescue party was quickly formed which made the descent. Of this party of 11 rescuers seven succumbed in the tunnel and one died after being brought out.

After the first rescue party had met the same fate as the 11 workers, no more men would volunteer to aid in the rescue work until helmets could be procured. There was considerable delay in getting helmets and not until after daylight today was the rescue work taken up by men properly equipped to withstand the deadly vapor.

Ten bodies were brought to shore on a tug at 10 a. m., today. Nine more bodies are known to be in the tube and the rescuers are digging their way through the debris to bring out the remaining bodies.

INJURED.

Peter McKenna, John Johnston, Michael Gallagher, Leroy Duan, Peter McCarran, lock tender; Peter Sullivan, "Pat" Sullivan, Michael Keough, Martin McFadden, Michael Nolan.

The most dramatic scene of the many enacted at the top of the shaft leading to the mouth of the tunnel at the crib took place when Utilities Director Farrell and Waterworks Superintendent Jeager arrived with James Keating and Thomas Clancy, two "sand hogs" employed on the lag "heading" of the tunnel.

They jumped from the tug before it had touched the crib and commenced to play the excited, babbling workmen gathered about the shaft with questions. When Clancy learned that his stepfather, Superintendent of Construction G. C. Vandusen, was in the "death chamber" he jumped onto the cage and shouted to Engineer Floyd Robinson to "lower away". Keating was right behind him.

Jeager protested at first but finally consented to permit the men to descend after they pleaded for aid.

minutes. The dozen workmen watched the little car shoot into the shaft, some of them shaking their heads while others wept.

Arriving at the bottom, Clancy and Keating shoved the little sand car, which they had taken with them, onto the tracks in the tunnel and disappeared. Five minutes passed and not a sound from the shaft.

Another five minutes—the watchers above straining their eyes for the appearance of the rescuers. Just as some one mentioned sending another rescue party into the tunnel, there was a shout from one keen-eyed watcher.

Keating and Clancy were pushing the little car, hearing some far objects onto the lift below. A sharp shrill sound—the signal to hoist the cage—rang through the low ceilinged murky crib and the donkey engine slowly lifted its burden to the surface.

Clancy and Keating arrived at the top shouting for assistance. A dozen men sprang to their aid and carried three bodies into the open air on the crib dock and began feverishly working to resuscitate the rescued men.

Clancy and Keating attempted to aid, staggering about like drunken men, their lungs filled with poisonous gas. They were forced to permit assistance to be rendered to them. For 10 minutes there was a hushed silence as the deck-hands of the tugs, newspaper men and the crib workmen worked over the three men, two of whom it was to be learned later had given their lives in an effort to save their comrades.

As the bodies of the rescued remained cold, despite the vigorous rubbing and artificial movement, low curses could be heard here and there as the resuscitators bemoaned the fact that there was no pulmotor or other life-saving apparatus at hand.

A thorough investigation of every phase of the disaster in the new West Side tunnel was assured by Mayor Davis today as he boarded a tug to go to the scene.

Demands for a probe, to place the blame and to guard against a repetition of the catastrophe came from councilmen. The probe will also go into the utter failure to provide life saving apparatus. There was talk, too, of a special session of council to name an investigating committee and possibly to hire experts.

"I have directed Utilities Director Farrell and Water Commissioner Jaeger to spare no efforts in getting to the bottom of the entire affair," said Davis. "I want to know just how and why the explosion occurred."

"First reports seem to indicate that no one was to blame. A workman, with his pick, opened a pocket of gas, in an instant there was the explosion. Nevertheless we want to know the exact cause."

At 8 o'clock this morning 11 hours after the accident, only two rescue helmets were on the scene.

The water works officials had failed to provide helmets, pulmets, pulmotors and other life saving apparatus to be used in event of accident, though a pocket of gas was struck last week, according to James McGrath, a tunnel worker, and many accidents have occurred since the construction of the tunnel was begun.

Two private ambulances, awaiting on the dock to take the rescued to hospitals, refused to allow their two pulmotors to be taken to the crib.

For hours in the early part of the relief work the rescuers had no pulmotors or helmets and were confused as to where they were available.

RILEY BURIED WITH FLOWERS AS COVER

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., July 25.—James Whitcomb Riley was laid to rest today in a massive flower-covered vault in Crown Hill cemetery.

This temporary resting place was chosen until it could be decided whether the Hoosier poet of simplicity could be permanently interred in Crown Hill cemetery where his grave might be a sanctuary or in a little cemetery in the little town of Greenfield, his boyhood home.

The body was moved back today to quiet Lockerbie street where the funeral was held from the residence. Dr. Joseph A. Milburn of Sevanoe, Tenn., officiated at the simple service this afternoon. Only the poet's few relatives and a few friends were present.

HALL REAPPOINTED.

COLUMBUS, O., July 25.—Governor Willis today reappointed Harry T. Hall of East Liverpool, state superintendent of banks for the term ending 1939. Frank R. Fauver of Elyria, superintendent of public works, was reappointed for the term ending 1937. G. E. Jobe of Cedarville, was reappointed member of the board of control of the state agricultural experimental station for the term ending 1931. All are republicans.

VILLISTAS MEET DEFEAT; LEADER SLAIN IN FIGHT

SMUGGLERS CHASED

Stolen Cattle Return When General Bell Sends Ultimatum to Bandits.

MEXICO CITY, July 25.—Official reports issued by the war department announce that a crushing defeat has been administered to the Villa army at San Isidro ranch, southwest of Parral. Government troops, it is stated, also routed another bandit force near Ajojo ranch, killing General Contreras, Villa's leading commander.

According to the official advice the Villistas defeated at San Isidro lost seven car-loads of provisions and the greater part of their ammunition.

EL PASO, Texas, July 25.—Half a hundred Carranzista cavalrymen jogged out of Juarez today with orders to hunt the smugglers who have been active in this vicinity and who are suspected of starting the outpost skirmish with the Massachusetts infantrymen.

Thus did General Francisco Gonzales, comandante at Juarez, reply to the complaint lodged by General George Bell, Jr., commander at Fort Bliss.

General Bell received information that the smugglers, presumably working in the interests of Pancho Villa or some other revolutionary faction, had their camp on "Island" in the Rio Grande on the outskirts of El Paso. There has been considerable sniping in this district. It is known as well that the automobiles of certain rich Mexicans of Villa tendencies have been making mysterious trips to the spot.

Apparently no effort has been made by the Carranzista garrison to run down the renegade band. Its last appearance was in the reported exchange of shots with the Massachusetts guardsmen. General Bell conferred with General Gonzales. As a result the Carranza cavalrymen were ordered out. They left with Mausers swinging handily in saddles, scabbards and extra belts of cartridges.

Meanwhile General Bell has instructed the guardsmen and regulars to "shoot back" if they are fired on from the Mexican side. This the soldier outfits are quite eager to do and the next sniping attempt is likely to result in a pitched battle.

The crisis that threatened to develop at Guadalupe where Mexican bandits retreated after raiding the Reynolds ranch on the American side, seemed about to dissolve today with the return of the stolen stock. The Guadalupe commandant's quick reply to General Bell's ultimatum that he would send in a punitive expedition unless the stock was returned was speeded on its way by the sending of two troops of American cavalry to the vicinity.

From the interior of Mexico came the vaguest sort of reports regarding the removal of General Jacinto Trevino as commander of Chihuahua and chief of the de facto army of the north. Once before General Trevino politely but firmly refused to leave Chihuahua and it is reported that he has repeated this act of insubordination and has refused to visit Oregon in Mexico City.

THE IDLER

An automatic watch-chain machine which has been placed in front of Basinger's Jewelry store is attracting considerable attention. The machine is operated by an electric motor and the chain which is made out of wire is cut and bent into perfect links.

Frank Cunningham returned this morning with his wife from Lakeside hospital at Cleveland, O., where Mrs. Cunningham had gone for a very critical operation.

Edward J. Veasy, Jr., former Lima young man, was among the successful candidates for the admission to the Illinois bar at the recent examination held in Chicago. Mr. Veasy recently graduated from Chicago Kent College of Law and will practice in Chicago, being associated with James C. McShane, late democratic candidate for United States senator from Illinois.

CARTOON SERVICE.
Three column cartoons, reproduced from such papers as The New York World, The Chicago Herald, The Philadelphia Record, The Newark News, The St. Louis Republic and others, will appear in The Lima Times-Democrat during the coming presidential campaign. Arrangements have been made whereby the best cartoons published in the leading newspapers of the United States are to be available for use in this paper. The first appears today.

The attention of thousands of pedestrians has been attracted to the automatic chain-making machine operating in front of the Basinger Jewelry Store.

This wonderful demonstration is undoubtedly worth a special trip to the Basinger store, for nothing of the kind has ever been seen locally. The chains turned out by this particular machine are of the smaller variety as used on la valieres, but the same type can be used in making chains of all sizes and materials.

More than 160 links can be turned out in a minute and 300 feet daily, which will give an idea of the rapidity of the motion. The machine is owned by the Manufacturing Jewelers of America, who are establishing representatives all over the country, all stores buying of the manufacturers. Basinger's are the Lima representatives.

MEDICINE KNOWN TO ANCIENT ZUNI INDIANS OF PUEBLOS

The Curative Properties of Plants Known to New Mexico Tribes.

Uses of Antiseptics and Narcotics Also Employed by Aborigines.

WASHINGTON, July 25.—An interesting account of the ethnobotany, or early knowledge of botany, of the Zuni Indians, written by the late Mrs. Matilda Cox Stevenson, who for many years studied Indian lore, especially that of the Pueblo tribes of New Mexico, was published recently in the thirtieth annual report of the bureau of American ethnology.

Under the medicinal uses of plants by the Zuni, Mrs. Stevenson says medical treatment is older than intelligence in man. The dog hunts the fields for his special grass medicine; the bear dresses the wound of her cub or fellow bear with perhaps as much intelligence as primitive man observes in his empirical practice.

Primitive man does not know why his medicine cures; he simply knows that it does cure. He believes disease to be the result of malign influence, including that of his fellow man, to whom he attributes the power of sorcery which he himself is unable to overcome; hence he must summon the aid of the best gods, who alone possess the power of combating the malevolent practices of the sorcerer, while he administers their medicine.

The plants of the gods cannot effect a cure, however, by the mere use of the medicines concocted from them; during the treatment of the patient prayers and supplications must be offered to the gods to whom the medicine belongs.

The therapeutics of these Indians is largely associated with occultism, these people having discovered through the ages and brought into practical use numerous valuable plant medicines, although in the first stages it was not understood that they were endowed with healing properties, except as they were associated with the gods, and the old conception still prevails.

That plants play an important part in the daily life of the Zuni is shown by Mrs. Stevenson, who found that in their belief plants were very much a part of themselves, being regarded as sentient beings; for the initiated of the Zuni could talk to them and the plants could answer. Plants were also held to be sacred, some of them having been dropped to the earth by the star people; some were originally human beings, others the property of the gods, and all were the offspring of the earth mother.

So interwoven with plant life, in both a religious and an economic way, are the customs and beliefs of the Zuni people, and so dependent are they on the products of the soil, that their culture may be said to have had its origin in concepts pertaining to the vegetable kingdom.

Mrs. Stevenson found that plants used in medicine by these Indians were not employed entirely in a Shamanistic way, experience having shown that many medicines derived from plants have real medicinal value. They are often properly and effectively prescribed by native doctors, although the medicinal practice of the Zuni has not passed beyond the empirical or experimental stage, notwithstanding their relative high degree of culture. The various uses to which plants, and their parts, are put by these Indians as food and medicine, in weaving, dyeing, basketry, decoration, toilet, folk-lore and ceremonies, as well as a score of names pertaining to clans, are described by the author.

21 Ohio Farmers Are Killed By Lightning Each Summer

By BERT D. BUCKLEY, State Fire Marshal.

The thunderstorm usually begins to form early on a hot day. The moist air near the earth, heated by the sun's rays, expands and rises to the cooler dry currents, which condense the moisture into clouds, which form "thunderheads." The particles of moisture, through friction, gather charges of electricity on their surfaces and these charges are massed in the cloud.

The thunder squall which precedes rain is an outward rushing of the wind in recoil from previous upward pressure. Perhaps this is increased by the cooling of the atmosphere by the shadows of the thunder cloud and by the downward brushing of the raindrops. The particles of moisture finally having grouped themselves in drops too heavy for the air to sustain, fall as rain.

Balancing Up to It.
The electricity forming in the cloud is positive and is attracted by the earth, which is nearly always negatively charged by induction. Negative electricity, being fond of its positive, climbs to high points to embrace it and the result is a discharge. Sometimes this induced electricity escapes so rapidly from the tip of a lightning rod that it makes a hissing noise.

The great number of flashes are, however, from cloud to cloud, because of the difference in potential in the charges they hold. These flashes usually are several miles long, while flashes to earth are one to three miles. So, the positive electricity seems to care more for getting even with its heavenly neighbors than for uniting with the negative which is wooing it from tree tops, church spires and chimneys. Possibly a cloud might become negatively charged. Few thunderstorms travel more than 100 miles.

Lightening a Fertilizer.
The energy in a cloud a mile across would fire a bullet weighing a ton 12,500 miles.

The electrical discharges during a thunderstorm combine oxygen of the air with nitrogen, forming a nitrate which enriches the soil and ozone which is a stimulant to all animal and vegetable life, although it gives a sulphurous smell and often sour milk—that is the basis for the impression that thunder causes milk to "turn." And, too, the downpour of rain carries with it to earth millions of floating germs whose multiplication in milk would sour it.

Thunder results from violent vibrations of the air caused by the lightning which, in breaking down the resistance of the air, creates a vacuum of an extent depending upon the intensity of the flash.

Many Town Houses Struck.
European scientists have observed that there are about 100 cloud-to-earth strokes to one from earth to cloud, the most satisfactory observations being those made on the rods of the Eiffel tower of Paris, which stands 1,000 feet in the air. The branches of a flash always have the same general direction as the main flash. One often fancies he can see the movement of the bolt from the flash which is caused by its heating the air red hot, but the average flash spends only the 60-1000 of a second in traveling a mile and that is too rapid for the human eye to follow. The central part of the eye is more sensitive than the rest of it, so the impression from the end of the flash which is directly on line of sight reaches the brain first. It is often said that houses in towns are rarely hit by lightning. The truth is, one-third as many buildings are struck in the towns as in the townships.

Deaths from Thunderbolts.
The reports of state fire marshals in the 25 states which have such an officer, show that 3 per cent of all buildings burned are ignited by lightning stroke.

The census of 1910 showed 422 persons to have been killed by lightning in that year.

The average number of Ohio farmers killed by lightning each summer is 21; the number seriously injured is thrice that.

The laws of France and Germany require all public buildings, from rural schoolhouses to parliament houses, to be protected by rods.

particular medicines a part of, or made from, the animal, instead of its associated plant.

Besides the plants held to be the property of the gods, others belong to medicine orders of secret fraternities or individuals, while some of their botanical remedies are the property of the general community.

Antiseptics and narcotics were employed by the Indians, as well as other primitive peoples, at a very early date, although civilized man was much slower to adopt these now indispensable aids to medical science.

It seems, however, that while narcotics were used in many operations, they were seldom given when bullets were being extracted, the Zuni saying that, as men were not like women, they must of necessity be non, and accordingly the bullets were cut out without further aid.

SLANG IS UPHELD BY STATE COURT

"Fly Cop" and "Bonehead Stunt" Proper, Judge Says.

A recent decision by the supreme court of Louisiana holds among other things that "as newspaper accounts of police court proceedings and detectives' escapades are not required to be written in a dignified style, it is not slanderous per se for the report to call a detective a 'fly cop,' to characterize his ruthless and unwarranted arrest of a man as 'spearing' him, and describe the officer's blunder as 'pulling off another bonehead stunt.' Upon this point the court said:

It is evidence that the term "fly cop" does not mean an officious policeman, as might be inferred from the ordinary meaning of the slang adjective "fly." We are informed that a "fly cop," sometimes called a "shadow bull," or a "tec," means nothing more or less than a "plain clothes man," a sleuth detective.

It appears that to "spear" a person, in the figurative or metaphorical sense in which the expression was used in the article complained of, means to catch a person ruthlessly, as by throwing a harpoon or gall into him; and we understand that to "pull off a bonehead stunt" means nothing more nor less than to commit a blunder.

The newspaper reporter, in this instance, credited the plaintiff with a keener sense of humor than he possessed, but we are not convinced that there was malice in the publication. Stories of detectives' escapades are read by men who enjoy a little nonsense now and then, and it would take much of the flavor out of the newspaper accounts of such proceedings if we should require that they be written up in the dignified manner of the opinion and judgments of this court.

For example, although we might deem it more appropriate to say, in commenting upon what we considered a mistake, that a reversible error or an abuse of discretion had been committed, a newspaper reporter might well say of a more or less serious error, without intending any disrespect, that a bonehead stunt had been pulled off."

RUSSO-JAPANESE ALLIANCE NEW EASTERN DEAL

Long Expected Treaty Affects Control of Northern Asia's Trade.

NEW LINES FORMED

United States Holds Big Foreign Business Despite Tangle.

By Frederick J. Haskin.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 25.—The latest diplomatic sensation to agitate the minds of those who have an eye to America's international relations is the news that Russia and Japan have consummated their long-expected treaty regarding the far east. Only the formal generalizations which invariably preface documents of this nature have been made public as yet—just enough to show that the most Oriental of European and the most Occidental of Asiatic nations have come to an agreement over their hitherto conflicting interests in the regions lying north of China.

While the nation waits for full and detailed reports on the nature of the treaty from Ambassador Guthrie in Tokyo and Ambassador Francis in Petrograd, a flood of speculation and conjecture is rife over the probable nature of the contract and its possible effect on American interests. Recently a resolution was introduced into the United States senate by Senator Lewis, of Illinois, calling on the secretary of state to investigate the nature of the treaty in its relation to American interests and trade, and report the result to the senate. While the resolution was side-tracked by force of parliamentary complications, it seems likely that such a report will yet be called for.

The treaty is of particular interest at the present moment, not only because the United States is watching with some anxiety the trend of trade relations between foreign nations on account of the readjustment of world commerce that may follow the great war, but also because it comes at a time when we are apparently about to adopt something of a changed policy in our foreign financial dealings, notably in China.

Reports and rumors have been rife for months and are steadily gaining in persistence and coherence, to the effect that the belligerent alliances of Europe will be succeeded by commercial alliances which will wage a bitter though bloodless war for the dominance of the world's trade—an object that really underlies the war itself. In this connection we hear of preferential tariff agreements to be consummated, of elaborate plans for girdling the globe with tranches of commerce, in which the place of the United States is not very clear. The allies are said to intend the elimination of the central powers from the supply-and-demand equation, while Germany and Austria naturally enough have their own intentions in the matter of post-bellum business.

Meanwhile the United States, with no organized national policy for foreign trade domination, or even extension and consolidation, by grace of circumstances continues to enjoy more, and more profitable foreign business than ever before in her history. The vital question of course is how long this state of affairs, or one at all like it, will last after the peace treaties are signed and Europe turns from the rifle to the ledger. True enough, it seems doubtful that any arbitrary combination of powers, markets and resources can long stand out against the force of natural trade currents, which are guided by laws economic rather than political or sentimental. None the less, there is little doubt that strenuous and far-reaching effort to direct artificially the flow of world-business will be made by the warring powers after the war.

Arbitrary and artificial arrangements for the direction of industry and commerce have been more successfully applied in China and the unsettled markets of the far east generally than in any other place. Given a sufficiently strong native central government, and a moderate national autonomy, the business of a buyer nation will go to the sources where the goods best fitted to its needs are for sale at lowest prices. In the case of a country like China where the complications of the local situation make it necessary for the foreign merchant to be backed by the force of his home government before his investment is secure, and where conflicting spheres of influence with their accompanying preferential trade rights have from time to time existed, commerce becomes a matter for national diplomacy as much as for individual enterprise.

It is for this reason that new treaties relating to the status of strong powers in the weak countries in the Orient have a direct bearing on the interests of Americans. For nowadays it is a well-recognized fact that the prosperity of a business man who lives a thousand miles inland from the national boundaries, and who never does business outside his own country, is nevertheless dependent on the prosperity of the nation as a whole, and that prosperity is in turn dependent on the state of foreign trade.

The diplomacy which looks after business interests has come to be called in the last few years "dollar diplomacy"—a catch-word that has about it a hint of opprobrium. None the less, dollar diplomacy seems in a fair way to be universally recognized as the leading form of modern diplomacy. Religious wars, wars of conquest, wars growing out of personal ambition or over boundary disputes have disappeared among first-class powers; even wars over national honor do not seem to be much in evidence, for here arbitration has its perfect opportunity. Modern wars are trade wars in the last analysis, which means they are the bitterest kind of wars—battles for existence. They are dollar wars, and for the same reason we have dollar diplomacy.

It was the scorn for dollar diplomacy that led to the withdrawal of American capital from participation in a recent large foreign loan to China. While no official statement to this effect has yet been made, the report is current and accepted that the United States will favor American loans to China, so long as these do not imply any preferential concessions to the lenders. This is a basically sound policy for the nation to adopt. Individually, we are all dollar diplomats in the game of life by force of necessity, and the same force operates on nations.

Certain parties in China profess to regard the new American attitude as coming too late in some respects, since Russia has recently loaned $18,000,000 on account of northern Chinese railways, and her concessions cover somewhat the same ground whose opening was contemplated in the American Chinchow-Aigun railway scheme, which fell through on account of foreign opposition and a lack of enthusiasm in domestic support. But there are plenty of opportunities for investment left in China.

It is in this latter connection that the possible effects of the Russo-Japan agreement are giving rise to endless speculation. What will be the effect on American chances? Will these two powers divide the far east between them—as Senator Lewis put it, do they contemplate the division of the world into these parts: a Europe controlled by France and England, an Asia controlled by Russia and Japan, and an America controlled by the United States for business purposes, if we can control it?

It is certainly to be hoped that these Powers do not contemplate the restriction of American commerce in the Orient. We need it too badly.

The world in actual practice will not divide neatly into three parts. England and Germany will continue to do an immense South American business after the war, and we cannot afford to limit our foreign trade to the South American market. The Japanese prime minister, Count Okuma, recently assured an American correspondent that Japan would maintain the open door in China, and also that she would welcome American capital in the problem of Chinese development. In fact, Japan has always been ready to welcome American capital in this task; what American merchants in China have desired is that the economic law that "trade follows the loan" should be permitted to operate freely. The prime minister also stated that Japan would heartily welcome American commercial and industrial activity in China. It is to be hoped that the new treaty and the course of events will prove that he is right.

HIS BACKACHE GONE.
Just now dangerous a backache, sore muscles, aching joints or rheumatic pains may be in some cases realized only when life insurance is refused on account of kidney trouble. Joseph G. IS LIMA GROWING?

If you doubt Lima is prospering the problem of overcrowded conditions confronting the people of the city at this time. Note also the rapidly increasing number of children attending the city schools from year:

1910-11	5,230
1911-12	5,334
1912-13	5,561
1913-14	5,857
1914-15	5,964
1915-16	6,431

The official records show an increase of 467 children in the schools for the year just closed, and 1201 more children in the schools this year than five years ago. This comparison reflects the present progressive growth of the "coming sixth city." At the same time it suggests a need for more school buildings.

GERMANY DENIES CAPTIVES MUST WORK AT FRONT.
BERLIN, July 24.—French and English papers are persistently repeating the charge that large numbers of captured English and French troops are kept at the front by the Germans and compelled to work under the fire of the guns of the allied armies. To refute this accusation the German general staff has issued the following statement: "The charge that prisoners are employed at the front by the German army administration is unequalledly false and a base slander. Under an order of the general staff issued August 4, 1914, all prisoners taken at the different fronts have to be transported to the prison camps in the interior of Germany at once. If they are not too severely wounded to be moved. The only French prisoners who remain on French soil after their capture are those in the hospitals."

MACKRELL, SUPT. OF C. & E. IS DEAD

Theodore Mackrell, superintendent of the C. & E. railroad, died yesterday afternoon at Huntington, Ind. When the problem of rebuilding the Chicago and Erie railroad presented itself Mr. Mackrell was chosen as the man most fitted for the task. He not only showed that he had the qualities that success for such an undertaking but was also a man among men. Mr. Mackrell was interested in railroading and took an active part in anything which would benefit the city in which he lived. His death will be a great loss to the Erie railroad, to the city of Huntington and to individuals to whom he had given another chance.

NEW SCALE ROOM AT CITY MARKET

Plans are being made for a new scale room at the city market house, as the increase of business renders the present room inadequate. New scales have already been installed and as soon as the service director draws up the plans the old room will be abandoned. The new drinking fountains were installed yesterday. Thirty-nine stands are in use in the market house this year. Last year there were only twenty-nine.

No More Running Sores

Minor M. Keltner Sells An Ointment Called San Cura That Is Positive Relief.

It matters not how old, persistent or poisonous the sore is, San Cura Ointment, the powerful antiseptic, will draw out the poison and promptly heal the sore. So sure of this are the owners, the Thompson Medical Co., that they have authorized Minor M. Keltner to return the purchase price if San Cura Ointment doesn't do all this paper says it will do. No fairer offer was ever made.

B. D. Dutton, Titusville, Pa., says: "My arm was covered with twenty-four running sores and swollen to twice its natural size. San Cura Ointment relieved the pain, drew out the poison and healed the arm in an incredibly short time. It is the greatest compound for healing I ever used."

The healing powers of San Cura Ointment are little short of marvelous. It gives relief, and is guaranteed to help salt rheum, eczema, bleeding, itching or protruding piles, ulcers, boils, carbuncles, chapped hands and chilblains. In cuts, burns, scalds and bruises, it always cures and is healing. 25c and 50c a jar. By mail on receipt of price, if your druggist is out of it or does not keep it.

SAN CURA SOAP.

For tender, itching or irritable skin, wash with San-Cura Soap, the antiseptic soap that soothes and heals, and kills germs of disease. Great for pimples, blackheads, and makes the complexion clear and attractive. 25c at Minor M. Keltner's.

MANY NEW VOTERS GET INITIAL CHANCE ON NEXT PRIMARY

Large Number of Inquiries Indicates Big Crop of
"First Voters."

Boys Who Turn 21 Before
November 3 Can Vote
on August 8

"First voters" abound this year, according to a member of the elections. The inquiries justify the belief that there are many young men in Lima who are to cast their first vote this year, and some of them are to vote at the primary at the age of 20 years.

Any boy who will be of age before election day, on election day or on the day after election, is entitled to vote at the election, and is therefore allowed to vote at the primary which nominates his party's candidates for the ticket. Thus he need not be of age to vote August 8—If the boy reaches his majority on or before November 3, he may participate in the primary two weeks from today.

JUST TO BE SURE.

Boys who expect to cast their first votes this year should observe the following rules:

1. If you come of age after the primary of August 8, but on or before November 3, the day after election, you are entitled to vote at the primary.
2. Before you may vote at the primary you must register in your precinct as a voter.
3. Registration days Friday and Saturday, 8 to 2 and 4 to 6.
4. If you are not sure where to register, call up the board of elections, Main 1806.

There is one restriction, however, which all "first voters" must observe. Friday and Saturday will be registration days, and all who have not previously registered must do so then in order to obtain the right to vote August 8. On both days the places of registration will be open between the hours of 8 a. m. and 2 p. m. and from 4 to 9 p. m. Transfers can also be made. The registration places are printed below, and should be saved for reference by any who may be in doubt.

The "first voter" should make sure at once of his precinct and ward, if he has moved recently, for the law demands a residence of ten days in the precinct, thirty days in the county, and one year in the state. In case of doubt as to the proper place to register, the boy who expects to cast his first vote at the coming primary should call at the office of the board of elections, Sherwood block, and inquire of the proper authorities, in-

ACCIDENT DAMAGES ARE SETTLED OUT OF COURT

Little Richard Hams, five year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hams, was struck and seriously injured some few weeks ago by the automobile of Max Braun at the corner of West street and Grand avenue, when Mr. Braun got mixed with two other machines coming in different directions and losing control of his car, the machine ran across the walk and into the yard of William Zimmerman, seriously injuring the Hams boy and also doing considerable damage to the property of Mr. Zimmerman. The boy has fully recovered from the effects of the injuries he received, through the care of a trained nurse.

The case has been settled out of court by the Preferred Accident Insurance company of New York, who carried the liability policy together with property damage on Mr. Braun's car.

The sum of $200.00 was paid Mr. Zimmerman for damage to his yard and porch and the sum of $800.00 was paid to Thomas Hams, guardian and father of the injured boy. The doctor's and nurse bill was also borne by the insurance company. The policy was written through the agency of Thomas A. Collins.

FREES SLAYER OF UMPIRE.

FRANKFORD, Ky., July 24.—H. H. Deacon, serving a life sentence for killing the umpire at a ball game in Bullitt county, three years ago, on petition of citizens, including a relative of the dead umpire, Robert Nell, county officers of both counties and the jurors.

The governor said the record showed that the umpire had been drinking and had frequent altercations with players, during one of which Deacon swung a baseball bat on the umpire's head, killing him. Petitions said Deacon was incensed at the umpire's conduct and rulings, but had no idea of seriously injuring him. He was only 22 years old.

RIDES GREAT STURGEON.

APPLETON, Wis., July 24.—The water in the river has been low of late. A fisherman seeing a large sturgeon in a pool tried to pick it up by the tail, but failed.

Some one yelled for him to jump on the fish and he did. It was worse than riding a bucking broncho.

Then some one yelled to the rough rider to hit the fish over the head. He picked up a stone and kept pounding until it was planked.

trench mortars and several hundred machine guns.

In its official report on the latest operations north of the Somme the British war office announced today that the Germans, after being reinforced, attacked the right flank and also delivered two assaults against the British center. These attacks were stopped.

Further ground has been gained at Pozieres where the Germans have been fighting desperately to hold part of the village.

So terrific have been the artillery duels on the Somme front in France that the sound of the cannonade was heard in towns on the south coast of England nearly 160 miles away when the wind came out of the southeast. The reverberations were plainly heard in Paris which is only 75 miles from the scene of action.

KAISER RETURNS TO EAST.

Lines of Tension Weakened in Poland and Volhynia.

LONDON, July 25.—German anxiety over the situation on the eastern front is reflected in the trip of Emperor William and General von Falkenhayn, chief of the general staff, from France to the Russian line.

German resistance in Poland and Volhynia is weakening, according to advices received today from various sources. This information is borne out by reports from Petrograd that the Russians, after four days of terrific fighting have thrust back the German troops of Field Marshal von Hindenburg for 12 miles south of Riga and along the Dvina river north of Dvinsk. On the other hand there is not a single sign of a lessening in the pressure which the armies of General Kuropatkin, General Kaledine, General Sakharoff, General Brusiloff and General Letchitsky are exerting against the whole Austro-German front from the Baltic to the southern ranges of the Carpathians.

It now develops that Russian Cosacks actually penetrated the Hungarian plain in Transylvania for a distance of about 30 miles, creating wild panic among the Hungarians, but subsequently withdrew. The enterprise was in the nature of a raid and was not carried out by large forces.

On the western front the allies are still driving forward by dint of hard fighting. New progress has been made by both the French and British on the Somme front and military critics both here and in Paris view the situation as being favorable to the utmost degree.

SOCIALISTS TO FIGHT ON, SAYS GERMAN LEADER

BERLIN, July 25.—At a mass meeting held at Waldenburg in Silesia Philipp Scheidemann, the leader of the Socialists and former vice-president of the reichstag said:

"The destruction of Germany would mean a terrible fate for the millions of our workmen. He would be at the mercy of the merciless victors and Germany would again become an agricultural state without commerce and industry. The whole German nation would be condemned to a state of utter misery, from which it could never rise again.

These facts we understood when the war broke out and we shaped our policy accordingly. In August, 1914, we declared that we would fight for the empire to the last drop of blood and we are as firmly determined as ever to defend the Fatherland against its host of enemies. What a victory of our enemies would mean we have seen in Eastern Prussia. It is true that in Belgium conditions also are not as pleasant as in peaceful Waldenburg, but our soldiers in the enemies' country have not acted like the Russians, and we are proud of that.

"When we voted for the war credits we were energetically protested against a policy of conquest and we have stated time and again that peace should be brought about as quickly as possible, but our efforts were misrepresented by our enemies. Last spring, when I said in the reichstag that Germany was strong enough to talk of peace and to take the first step in this direction the French and British press anxiously shouted: 'Germany is down and out! Let us finish her forever!'

"Under these conditions it is our solemn duty to fight, until the victory is won, no matter how enormous the sacrifices may be. We will stick to the empire to the end, and come what may, but we have never ceased telling the chancellor that we will not permit him to support the policy of Count Westarp and the Pan-Germans who want to annex Belgium and northern France. We are fighting for the existence of our nation and for nothing else.

"The socialists of the allied countries support their governments and of us they expect that we should turn traitors. Only recently the French socialists appealed to us to start a revolution and on the following day in parliament they voted for new credits to hasten the destruction of Germany."

THE HEART OF A POET
"THE HEART OF A POET," and what a heart! And what a poet! A poet whose pen was made up from the heart of the American people. How everyone loved him, grown-ups, and little folks, all with the same degree of affection and each and every one of us considered him our poet. But I think that the children have the strongest claim to the poet we all love. What understanding had he for their vagaries, and secret longings. His was the heart of a boy, and to him belonged the hearts of all the eternal youth of America.
 There is not one of us but can take a lesson of great worth from the life and works of this poet. Simplicity, sincerity, endeavor and understanding, were fundamentals in his character. And his soul will reach its immortality through the poems that will live down through the ages. Sighs, smiles, tears, laughter, all intermingled with deep love and human understanding, and a sense of loss for a friend. This is the heritage he leaves to us all.

Yes: I shall see the woodland green And meadow islets, set between The channels, where the cattle die Lapped in rich pasture. There shall I Once more behold my native stream, And hear its murmuring pebbles fall, And catch the echoes as a dream, Which mock the hoarse-voiced boatman's call.

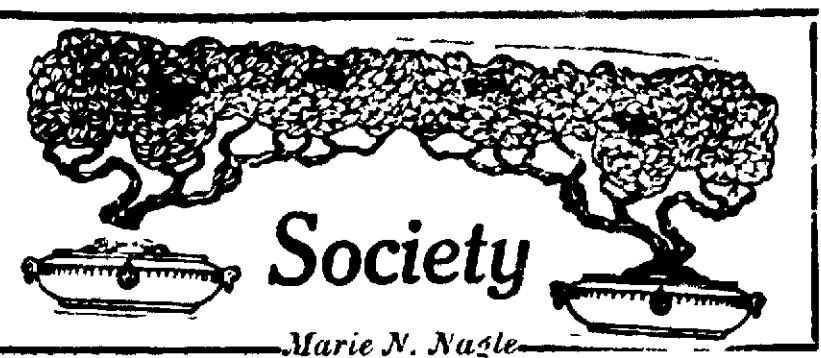

Once more I feast my eyes upon The splendor of the nectarine; Once more I gather one by one The plums whose purple, mixed with green, Is fairer than Callista's cheek. Among the branches while I seek Their beauty stays my hand, for so I love to watch their glories glow.

Once more to roam among the flowers, Once more amid the hay-cocks deep To watch at noon the sturdy mowers Wearied with labors, lie asleep, . . . —Theophile de Viau (Tr. from the French by Sir Walter Besant.)

ANIMAL SHEARS FOR GUARDSMEN'S LOCKS.

HOUSTON, Texas, July 25.—Ed Lee, one of the husky firemen at Central Fire Station, is rapidly acquiring a reputation as a barber. While he was engaged in clipping horses a number of the men of the Sixty-ninth regiment of New York stopped to look at the fire apparatus. One of them spied Mr. Lee, while acting as hair-trimmer to his team.

"Say, friend, what's the chances to get a haircut?" the soldier finally asked, after watching Lee deftly with the surplus hair from one of the fire horses with an electric clipper.

"Fine," said Lee. As soon as Lee had finished with the steed, he called "next" and in a jiffy Mr. Militiaman had his surplus hair removed.

"Next," called Lee, and when he had finished exactly 25 militiamen had their hair trimmed, each operation averaging one minute ten seconds. The men were then furnished with soap and towel and gave their heads a good washing.

MARRYING A BUTTERFLY
By MRS. EVA LEONARD
 Ethel isn't invited to ride two blocks and wants to leave town.
"THEY are not very neighborly, not to ask us to ride," snapped Ethel. "While the man who lives right next door rides."
 "What, Ethel, Mr. Morton does not own the machine. Dr. Ellison and the Mortons are old friends. They came together and it was natural for them to return the same way. The Parsons are the next door neighbors to the doctor, so taking them was a very natural thing. Don't look for slights. People who look for them always find them."
 "Oh, we are out of everything. I might as well get used to it," was the querulous answer.
 "Didn't you have a good time, dear? You seem out of sorts over something," Ralph patted the tiny hand resting on his arm.
 "Oh, it was just a vulgar crush, nothing exclusive about it," was the reply.
 "Everybody had on his best clothes and wore his most radiant smile, but my little wife looked prettier than anybody," said Ralph, falling back on the talk that usually smoothed the frown out of her face.
 "That is not saying much when there was not a woman there who was in style except Mrs. Jaynes, and she more such extreme style and such
 "There are six in a five-passenger machine. I should think that a load" Ralph was relieved to get out of the overheated, over-scented rooms into the open air. Mrs. Jaynes' reception was a success if numbers were any indication.
 "Nobody could have sent regrets, for the whole town was there," he thought.
 "It would not have hurt Mr. Morton to have walked and that would have made room for me," began the fault-finding voice at his side.
 "It is only a little ways, and the evening is fine. Why should you care?" Ralph's voice was soothing.
 "I hate to be snubbed. It is a colors that I felt ashamed for her," Ethel replied.

"I felt sorry for James. He evidently hates these functions and is dragged into them willy nilly. They say his son is a ne'er do well and small wonder when you see the way he was brought up." Ethel did not reply.

"Ralph," she began after a pause, "couldn't you possibly get a position somewhere else? I just hate this town. I am not used to being snubbed, and I do not propose to stand it."

"Snubbed," he repeated.

"Yes, I call it nothing else, their not asking me to ride tonight."

"Are you harping on that again? I am surprised at you. It is something new for you to be imagining things of that sort." Ralph stopped and looked at his wife as they passed under one of the infrequent street lamps.

"I always had money to do what other people did before I married you," she complained.

"Ethel, if you knew how such speeches hurt me, I doubt if even you, thoughtless as you are, would make them."

"Well, it makes me so cross to have to walk when other people ride. I want to have things like the best. I am used to it."

"And I, Ethel, am used to a home where the woman was thoughtful of other people's feelings and it is hard for me to get used to selfish fault-finding," answered her husband in a stern voice.

KILLS STEPFATHER TO SAVE MOTHER

Confesses Deed, Says He'd Do it Again; Is Put Under Arrest.

ALLIANCE, July 25.—Rushing to the defense of his mother and three sisters, whose lives, he claims, were threatened, Sheldon Clement, 16, struck his stepfather, George Sheets, 45, a blow which resulted in his death on their farm northwest of this city.

The boy went to Canton and told the prosecuting attorney the circumstances.

"My stepfather came home drunk last night and started to abuse mother," said Sheldon. "I left the room at first because I didn't think he would strike her and I never liked to be near when he scolded mother. Pretty soon I heard mother scream. I ran into the bedroom up stairs and saw my stepfather beating her."

"He was a big man but I thought I could make him turn on me if I interfered and in that way my mother wouldn't get hurt. I started toward him and he made a dive for me. I jumped aside and he almost fell through the door leading to the staircase. He got up and went to hit me. I struck back and knocked him through the door. He fell down stairs. I ran to the bottom and found he was dead."

"I would do the same thing over again a hundred times."

FINDS SOLDIER SON

THOUGHT DEAD, IS ALIVE.

BERLIN, July 25.—Early in September, 1915, Wilhelm Fels, a manufacturer of Osterath near Crefeld, was informed that his only son was among the missing after one of the battles on the western front and had probably been killed. As the International War Prisoners committee and the Red Cross society could find no trace of the young soldier, he was given up for dead.

Last week the sorrowing father was informed by an exchanged invalid that his supposedly dead son is alive and well in a French prison camp in Northern Africa. Since his capture the young man has not been permitted to write one single letter to his parents.

idently asserted, lives up to and beyond its trade-marked title more generously than ever before. Today the circus is exhibiting in Mansfield and long before the breakfast hour tomorrow the first of the four long trains is due to arrive. There will be but few sleepy heads among the youngsters. Kids that ordinarily kick upon getting up at a reasonable hour to do the morning chores will sleep with one eye open tonight and be on hand at the railroad yards early in the morning.

The first thing on the circus day schedule will be the parade at 10 o'clock in the morning, and it is promised to be a "whopper." As a banisher of melancholia the circus people say it will be superior to any liver pill.

Every stitch of the wardrobe was new this spring and there will be new features. Almost everything of any standing in the zoological line will be seen, either openly displayed or carefully concealed in gilded cages. Over a score of elephants will plod along, and there will be six bands of music in the two-mile long pageant of glittering splendor.

But it is under the "big top" at 2 and 8 o'clock p. m., that this thousand-sided miracle of the amusement world promises to make all sit up and take notice, for this circus goes on improving each year and burning up all the laudatory adjectives, until all the superlatives are exhausted. This season the circus is almost entirely new and commences with a gorgeous pageant of the Thousand and One Nights, enlisting the services of over 1,000 people, and a wealth of colorful wardrobe and trappings.

Following the glittering pageant will come the rapid and diverting succession of arenic acts given in three rings, four stages and the huge track. The elephants come first—the musical elephants who play brass instruments and have a whole bagful of new tricks. Lupeta Perea, who in her early childhood, shocked the natives of Mexico City with her love for the topmost branches of the tallest trees, will thrill by her exploits upon the first trapeze, shooting like a comet through space at the very top of the tent. bogus art patron in the screen-play was of such a type and to carry out the idea along the standards set for Pallas pictures, absolutely no limit was placed on the cost of the setting. Rare, expensive and in some instances, priceless art treasures were secured. Some from antique shops, some from art dealers, but mostly from the homes of wealthy art collectors.

When finally assembled the studio was a greater treasure-house than the cave of the forty thieves. Oriental draperies and hangings, ancient metal lamps inlaid with precious stones, antique cabinets made from perfumed woods, inlaid tables, strange Japanese ivory carvings, Asiatic idols of gold with inset jewels than ran their values into many thousands, costly vases, curious weapons, suits of armor from many nations and strange trophies from the ends of the earth were but some of the multitude of valuables assembled in profusion. There are no stunts in the play. It is just funny because of the humorous situations and actions. All the races at Lima Driving park were very hotly contested yesterday afternoon. A large number of the fair sex was sprinkled through the well-dressed stand. The winner of each of the three events came from behind and in no case did the winner of the first heat take the race.

The feature event of the day, the Lima House stake, was annexed by Billy Arlington, who won the big share of the $1,000 prize for 2:18 pacers. Elsie Onwardo with Boyd up looked to be the winner of the stake after she had taken the first two heats, but Arlington came back strong and took the next three. Elsie Onwardo took second and Miss Patsy third money.

The sensation of the day was furnished in the 2:09 pace for a stake of $500. In this event Adio Guy and Billy Fair lined up in several close finishes. Although the event was won by the former side-wheeler, Billy Fair pushed him to the limit in each heat with the exception of the first. Billy Fair made the best time of the race, turning the track in 2:08 1/2.

Although Billy Fair took the first heat of the race in fast time and Adio Guy came in sixth, the latter showed that this was not his usual position in the second heat when in a close brush he nosed out the other in the finish. After taking the third heat Adio Guy lost the fourth in a close finish, but won first money when he came back and took the fifth heat.

Jack Custer, with McCarthy up, won the 2:19 trot for a purse of $400. Gail McKinney, who took the first heat of the race, won second money and Lena Moko annexed the third prize. In the second heat Jack Custer stepped around the track in 2:13 1/2, equalling the time made by the winner of the first heat. Summaries:

Eastern tennis followers have the satisfaction of knowing that at least one prominent tennis trophy will not go westward. George M. Church of Tenafly, N. J., defeated William E. Davis, of San Francisco, in the final round of the Rockaway Hitting tournament at Cedarhurst, N. J. As every prize of any importance in tennis-land seems to take flight to the sunny climate of California, Church's victory arouses no little interest.

SHORT SPORT

This is the day the New Yorkers will pay homage to Christy Mathewson. "Big Six" will lead his Red-land warriors to the Polo grounds to combat his former team mates.

Benny Leonard says it is easy to hit Freddie Welsh. There are a lot of fighters who don't think so.

The thirteenth inning is no hoodoo for the White Sox. They put over the winning run in that inning in the game with the Tigers.

The Pirates enjoyed a batting matinee with the Phillies.

Some teams have a few crack pitchers. There are many pitchers who crack before the ninth.

Both the Yanks and Giants were defeated by the Bisons and Indians in exhibition games.

FIGHT RESULTS

NEW YORK, July 25.—Frankie Conliffe outpointed Joe Malone in a 10-round bout.

Danny Foy outboxed Johnny Bush in six rounds.

Lou Williams of Savannah, knocked out Mike Russell in the first round.

Young Marino and Battling Chuck boxed a 10-round draw.

Dunn Makes Good Investment In Indian Purchase

By Frank G. Menke.

NEW YORK, July 22.—"Sunny Jim" Dunn is smiling the smile that won't come off.

He's the fellow, y'no, who paid out something like $425,000 for the Cleveland Indians during the none too gentle springtime while the "wise ones" uddered such remarks as "the poor boob," "Barnum was right" and kindred sentiments.

And right now Jim Dunn owns the club that has outdrawn every other outfit in the majors; a club that has been in the pennant fight from the start of the season, and shows no sign of cracking.

Dunn's successful plunge into the diamond game reads more like a tale of fiction than a plain statement of facts.

Charlie Somers, as you may recollect, owned the Indians—the joke team of the Johnsonian circuit in 1915. On paper, and on the ball field, it looked like one of the worst collections of misfits in existence.

Somers wanted to keep his club, but the bankers who took charge of his affairs, decided that the team must be sold.

Dunn Buys "Gold Brick." For a long time no one made a real offer for the club. Who wanted a team that looked like a certain tail-enders for years to come?

Who wanted to gamble with an outfit that had lost close to $100,000 in 1915, at least half that sum in 1914 and corresponding losses in most of the other years. Who wanted the Indians? No one—except James Dunn, of Chicago.

When the bio-pollot found that Dunn's sole previous connection with the diamond game had been in the capacity of spectator, it right away predicted bankruptcy for the Chicagoan.

"Maybe—and maybe not was Dunn's comment. "Maybe I'll lose money but I have a bunch that I'm going to win. I'll apply business methods to baseball. I'm going to get the very best I can, no matter what the cost, and I'm going to give Cleveland the best ball club it has had in some time."

Venture Costs $500,000. Whereupon, Dunn started the base ball world still more by paying $55,000 in cash, and throwing in two players as "to boot," for Tris Speaker, the outfielding star of the Red Sox. Dunn instructed his manager, Lee Fohl, to grab off any other players he could get and "doggone the cost."

Whereupon, the base ball sharps, mentioned the name of Dunn, and tapped their own domes and murmured "empty" to indicate that they felt Jim Dunn was somewhat minus in brain equipment.

When the 1915 season opened, Dunn balanced up his books and found that his dive into base ball had cost him approximately a half-million: $425,000 for the original roster of players, the franchise, stands and playing field; $55,000 for Speaker and about $20,000 for other players.

"And now we will see what shall be seen," said Dunn.

Dunn Harvests Golden Crop. And this is what fandom, to its utter amazement, has seen during the first three months of the campaign:

The Indians, in less than 30 home games have drawn close to 400,000 paid admissions—almost three times as many home town fans as paid to see them perform in their 77 home games last season.

On the road the Indians have outdrawn every other club in the circuit. The paid admissions at their on-the-road games have been in the neighborhood of 400,000.

The crowds that have been turning out to see the Indians perform during the past month has been increasingly larger than they were earlier in the year. Base ball at last have concluded that the Indians really must be considered seriously in the bunting light, and a pennant battler always "puts" well.

Right now the Indians share of the aye money both on the road and at home has more than cleared the entire operating and overhead expenses for the season. From now on every dollar that rolls into the Cleveland club coffers will be velvet for the game Chicagoan who took a long chance and—won.

No matter what the Indians do from now on until the end of the season, Dunn will make a nice profit. Should the club remain in the fight until the end of the season, it means big crowds everywhere and, at a most conservative estimate, Dunn will clear between $100,000 and $150,000. Should the Indians grab the pennant and a split of the world series Dunn's net profit for the year will be between $150,000 and $200,000.

And, in the meantime, Jim Dunn smiles his sunny smile, and murmurs, good-naturedly: "Who's a boob?"

Belmonts Lose. The Belmont baseball club was defeated Sunday by the A. O. H. team by a score of 7 to 6. The star players of the Belmont club were unable to take part in the contest owing to injuries lately received. The feature of the contest was a grand stand catch by Anderson in deep short.

MARKETS

WALL STREET GAINS
AFTER FIRST LOSSES

NEW YORK, July 25.—Losses of around a point were sustained in the leading issues during the first 15 minutes of trading on the stock exchange this morning. Some of the specialties were offered down to a greater extent by aggressive bear traders. Most interest was attached to the dealing in steel common, which after opening $\frac{1}{4}$ higher at 88 $\frac{1}{2}$, declined to 85 $\frac{1}{2}$. Union Pacific fell from 127 $\frac{1}{2}$ to 126 $\frac{1}{2}$, and Reading, which yielded to 95, selling ex-dividend at \$1, showed a loss of $\frac{1}{2}$ points. Industrial Alcohol was again attacked and forced down from 105 $\frac{1}{2}$ to 102 $\frac{1}{2}$. Maxwell dropped 2 $\frac{1}{2}$ to 78 $\frac{1}{2}$, and Studebaker and Willys-Overland both yielded over a point. Mexican Petroleum was strong, advancing $\frac{1}{2}$ to 99 $\frac{1}{2}$, but broke to 98 $\frac{1}{2}$. Marine moved up $\frac{1}{2}$ to 86, but declined to 84 $\frac{1}{2}$. There were fractional rallies at the end of the first 15 minutes.

Later the market developed a steadier tone. Steel common rallied sharply, but the dealings were professional and without significance. Money loaning at $\frac{1}{2}$ per cent.

BASEBALL SCOUTS COMPLAINT.

Hugh S. Fullerton has a short story in the August American Magazine in which a professional baseball scout laments the tricks of bush league managers. One of them says:

"If a scout don't keep his eyes open those bush managers are worse than a bunch of salted mine promoters, so I don't ask any questions, but goes around snooping after Musser. Everyone in Muskegon knows all about that game, but no one knows Musser—new man. I had to hunt up the manager and take a chance of having said enough to test his gold bricks. But this one was different. When I asked about Musser he said, 'Shush-sh-sh-shh,' and I has to walk him around in front of the mirror so the bartender can't hear before he'll say a word. Then he leans over and says, 'Shush-sh-shh! College man. Rich daddy. Pitching under fake name. Afraid he'll lose his amateur standing. Hired him to pitch one game, won a sockful. Musser wouldn't even stay to supper. Shush-sh-shh!'"

HOW PERSONALITY COUNTS IN ACTING.

"Nobody disputes that personality plays an enormous part in the popular success of an actor or actress," says Walter Prichard Eaton in the August American Magazine.

"But to differentiate between the actor with a strong personality who is also an artist, and one who is not an artist, not infrequently overtaxes the lay critic; while the dispute has never ceased to rage whether the use of a strong personality is 'legitimate' or not. You can hear it every day."

OHIO RANKS FOURTH
IN SOAP PRODUCED

Has 42 Plants Out of 513 in the Entire United States.

When it comes to keeping humanity clean, Ohio is right in the forefront, according to the United States census bureau.

A report just issued by the bureau shows that Ohio ranks fourth among the states of the Union in the number of its soap-manufacturing establishments.

Of the 513 establishments reported for 1914, 93 were located in New York, 58 in Pennsylvania, 44 in Massachusetts and 42 in Ohio.

After Ohio came Illinois with 33, then California with 31. New Jersey had 28, Missouri 30, Rhode Island 14, Indiana 13, Connecticut 12, and the remainder were scattered.

The total products of the 513 establishments were valued at $135,340,459, which represents one year's output. Of these 513 establishments the principal business of 371 was the manufacture of soap and 142 were engaged primarily in other industries, such as slaughtering and meat packing and the manufacture of food products, cotton seed products and patent medicines and compounds, and produced soap as a subsidiary product.

The growth in the business is chiefly in hard soaps, the output increasing from 1,794,249,000 pounds, valued at $91,054,466 in 1909, to 2,064,228,000 pounds valued at $104,500,542, in 1914, an increase of 15 per cent in quantity and 14.3 per cent in value.

PENNSYLVANIA — BIRTHPLACE OF THE NATION.

Agnes Repplier, writing about Pennsylvania in the August American Magazine, says:

"The sensitive Pennsylvanian, pelted from every side by neighbors whose lives are not without reproach may be pardoned for looking back a bit wistfully upon the heroic days when his state was the birthplace of the nation. He turns from the preposterous Capitol at Harrisburg, with its fourteen-hundred-dollar tables, and its sixteen-hundred-dollar bootblackening stand, with its chairs that cost more than thrones, and its umbrella tubs that cost more than Roman baths, with its imperial hat-racks and its vice-regal spittoons, to contemplate the austere beauty of Independence Hall, built for gentlemen and patriots."

HITCHCOCK RAIS' GOVERNMENT SERVICE.

In an article on jobs with a poor future in the August American Magazine, Frank H. Hitchcock, the former postmaster general, is quoted as saying:

"The government service in Washington is a good place for a young man who wishes to pay his own expenses while receiving his education at one of the universities in Washington. But, after he has received his education, he is far better off out of the service than in it."

MAY MARCH MILITIA ACROSS STATE TO GIVE BOYS DRILL

New Plan is to Harden Ohio Troops to Work of Warfare.

CAMP WILLIS, O., July 25.—Northwestern Ohio may soon see rows of glistening camp fires at night and a mile of marching khaki-clad men at day, for officials here today were contemplating asking permission of the war department to move the second brigade to Camp Perry for a few days so as to utilize the rifle range there and give the men target practice.

The change of base is contingent on two things—assurance that no orders to move south will be received for a couple weeks and permission from Secretary of War Baker for the move.

In the request to be forwarded to Baker it will be pointed out that at least half of the militiamen have never fired a rifle or revolver and there is no room in Camp Willis for target practice.

Brigadier General John C. Speaks today said that if permission to move is received the men will be marched through the state to Camp Perry which is near Port Clinton, in a seven-day hike. The plan was so enthusiastically received today as to cause the high officials to figure out a tentative line of march through Delaware, Marion and Upper Sandusky.

The men would hike about 16 or 18 miles a day and then pitch their "pup" tents which are carried in rolls on their backs, in fields along the roadside.

The four troops of cavalry probably would apply for permission to secure horses for the march and accompany the fourth, fifth and eighth regiments so as to drill up on maneuvers.

It is planned to move the balance of the troops to Camp Perry after the second brigade and the cavalry have had a few days, if no moving orders have been received during the interim.

Although Colonel W. H. Duffy was ready to pay off the men today he was delayed because not a single regiment had presented its payrolls in proper form. The eighth regiment expected to have its 12 payrolls all complete before night.

HER LEFT SIDE HURT.

Mrs. Laura Beall, Plattsburg, Mo., writes: "Last April I got in bad. My left side hurt all the time. I had symptoms of Bright's disease. I took Foley Kidney Pills and I feel all right now." They quickly relieve backache, rheumatism, aches and pains. Bladder troubles, too, are corrected by this remedy. H. F. Vorkamp

$15,000 ON FIEND'S HEAD.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 25.—Rewards amounting to $15,000 have been offered for the arrest and conviction of the perpetrators of the bomb explosion which killed six persons and injured 42 in San Francisco's preparedness parade Saturday.

Charles M. Fickert, district attorney, asserted today that the persons responsible for the explosion are in a nation-wide movement against the government and that their activities are not confined to this city.

Police began today a systematic organization of a bomb plot bureau which is to undertake permanently the handling of the present case and similar crimes. Police admit they have no evidence against a man arrested Saturday.

ARMY CALL VEXES ENGLISH DOCTORS

Conscription Threat Rouses Surgeons, Who Say 16,500 Enough.

LONDON, July 24.—The government is calling for more doctors for the army. Surgeon-General Sir Alfred Loege has appealed to the medical profession to "mobilize" voluntarily, otherwise, it is suggested, recourse will have to be had to medical conscription.

Many doctors in private practice at home object to mobilizing, even voluntarily. Many members of the British Medical Association maintain the army has already all the doctors it requires if it would only learn how to employ them to the best advantage. Some of them even suggest that the war office should learn how to do it from the enemy. One authority says:

"Already the Royal Army Medical corps has taken 11,000 doctors from private practice and they are asking for another 4,000, making in all 15,000. This, with 1,500 medical officers in the permanent service, gives a total of 16,500 to attend to an army of about 4,000,000. The Germans, for an army of 10,000,000, have 14,000 medical officers.

"The position at home is serious, as there are only 30,000 medical men and women in practice. With 15,000 taken away no more than 15,000 are left to attend to a population of 41,000,000 men, women and children. How grave the position is may be suggested by recalling that more than 500,000 industrial casualties occur in this country every year, which is hugely heavier than the casualties at the British front in a year of the present war."

It is maintained that the whole problem could be solved, without withdrawing any more doctors by a re-organization of the Royal Army Medical corps. Among the reforms they urge are the following:

"Substitution of the army for the division as the medical unit, no doctors being thus kept idle because their division is not in action.

"Adoption of a new system of hospitals at the front and abolition of field ambulances. It is estimated that the latter change alone will save 1,500 doctors in an army of 1,000,000.

"Release of doctors for home work when there is no work for them to do at the base hospitals. Under modern conditions it is always known when an attack is imminent, and the staff would have 24 hours to return to their base."
